

Abstract of the Disclosure:

An electronic device has external contact elements projecting from at least one external contact side of a plastic housing. The external contact elements have an internal section and an 5 external section. The external section has an external contact region tapering away from the external contact side. An external contact element of this type improves the possibilities of a soldering connection to circuit carriers of superordinate circuits.

REL/nt